EGEVAERK'S FLUID CHAIR IS TRUE TO ITS NAME

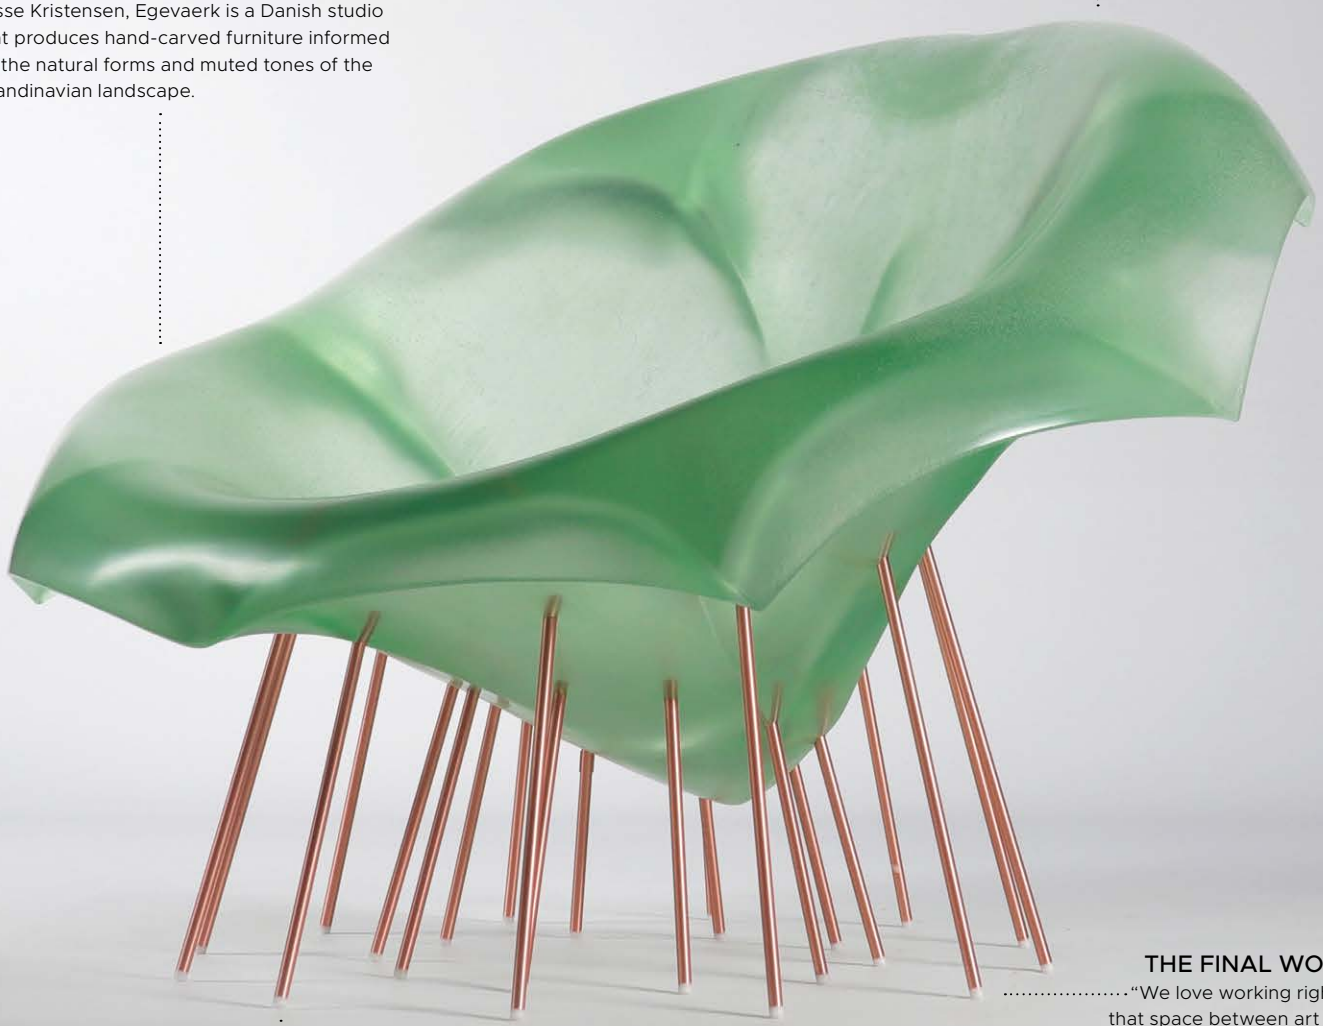
TEXT CHRISTOPHER DAY

THE INSPIRATION

"The Fluid No. 5 chair is part of a series that started as an exploration of weightlessness, of the movement of sea creatures, and of the imagined sensation of drifting through outer space," says Kristensen. "That's where its shape comes from."

THE CREATORS

Founded by cabinet makers Mette Bentzen and Lasse Kristensen, Egevaerk is a Danish studio that produces hand-carved furniture informed by the natural forms and muted tones of the Scandinavian landscape.



THE FINAL WORD

"We love working right in that space between art and function," says Kristensen. "The Fluid chair has a strong personality, so it will always stand out in a space, but it's also sturdy, so, yes, please feel free to sit on it." egevaerk.dk; hostlerburrows.com

THE MATERIALS

"The Fluid pieces are made from bio-resin and copper, which is a bit unusual for us since our other works are in wood," says Bentzen. "Resin won us over because it's transparent, and it captures light beautifully. Copper felt perfect for the 'tentacle' legs, which we know will develop a natural patina over time."
